THE GREENSBORO TELEGRAM

ESTABLISHED IN 1897. GREENSBORO, N. C., FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 9, 1911. VOL. 14. NO. 267.

JAMESTOWN STIRRED BY BRUTAL MURDER

Mrs. Ida Hill, of Lexington, Found Dead in Room at Home of Mrs. J. S. Ragsdale—Was Evidently Strangled by Burglars to Prevent Outcry—No Clue to Murderers—Jury Still at Work.

With her hands strapped tightly to her breast, a leather strap drawn tightly around her throat and tied to a bed post and her mouth filled with a stocking and a black mask Mrs. Ida Hill, of Lexington, was found cold in death in her room at the home of her mother, Mrs. J. S. Ragsdale, at Jamestown early yesterday morning.

The ghastly find was made by a servant who went to her room shortly about 7 o'clock to awaken her. The alarm was at once given and the family physician, Dr. J. R. Gordon, hastily summond. The news was immediately conveyed to Sheriff Jones and, accompanied by Coroner Wood and Deputies Crutchfield and Weatherly, that official was soon on the scene.

Coroner Begins Investigation.

Coroner Wood immediately impanneled a jury, composed of J. W. Sechrest, A. P. Staley and D. F. Staley, of High Point; Dan Moore, C. V. Richardson and E. S. Armfield, of Jamestown, and began an investigation. The following facts were brought out: Mrs. Hill retired to her room about 8 o'clock Wednesday night. She rarely came down before 7 o'clock and, while the remainder of the family arose an hour or more earlier, no one thought anything was wrong until it was finally decided to ascertain of Mrs. Hill was feeling well. The servant dispatched to her room was horrified by the discovery.

Crime Committed Just Before Day.

The physician who made the examination stated that the deceased came to her death by strangulation and that she died sometime between two and four o'clock. This would seem to show that the deceased was strangled just before the members of the household arose and her assailants were frightened from the house.

Purpose of the Crime.

It is believed that Mrs. Hill's asesailants had no intention of committing murder, but that they entered the house to commit burglary and bound and gagged Mrs. Hill to prevent any outcry and gagged her tighter than was intended. That the deed was committed by burglars is evident for a pocketbook belonging to the victim was missing, the contents of the room mussed about and in in the dining room two bundles of silverware were tied up, one being on the table and another in achair beside the window. The theory is that the burglars were frightened away and in their haste left the silverware.

W ere Professionals.

That there were two of the burglars and that they were professionals is evident. In the first place it would have been almost impossible for one man to have trussed the victim up as she was. From the condition of the room and the manner in which the body was found would make it almost most certain that two men were present. Mrs. Hill's body showed that she had put up a struggle to free herself from her captors as her muscles were rigid. Then the black mask was torn into as if she had snatched from the eyes of one of the assailants. A bruise over the right eye was doubtless caused by her head striking the foot of the bed in the struggle. It was evident that on entering the room the burglars awakened Mrs. Hill and to prevent an outcry one seized her by the throat and crammed a stocking into her mouth. As he was doing this she tore his mask from his face and this fell on the stocking and in his haste the burglar crammed this into her mouth unwittingly. Meantime the accomplice was busy getting a leather strap off a valise and this was placed around her neck and drawn taut. She was then lifted from the bed and placed on the floor at the foot of the bed, the end of the strap being fastened to the footrail in such a manner that the noose around the neck would not loosen. They then secured a second strap off the valise and, placing her hands on her breast, passed this around her body and drew her arms fast, making the other end secure to the foot post of the bed. As stated above, it is not believed that murder was intended, burglars simply wanting to prevent an outery before they left the house. They then ransacked the room and proceeded downstairs to the dinig room where they bundled up the silverware.

Performed Work Quickly.

Besides the victim there were nine persons sleeping in the house and no one was awakened by the noise. Mrs. Ragsdale, Mrs. Hill's mother, occupied an adjoining room, while Miss Jennie Ragsdale and Mary Hill, a daughter of the deceased, three boys and two young men, Enock and Will Modlin, all slept on the same floor. However, the young men occupied rooms in an L, but the others were in close proximity to the room in which the crime was committed. The cook slept in the house also. None of the occupants heard any unusual noise during the night. The cook and young men arose as usual about 4 oclock and it is believed that the burglars were in the dining room preparing to leave when they heard the occupants getting up and in their hurry left the silverware.

No Clue to Criminals.

There is no clue to the criminals. A slight rain fell just about the time the crime was committed and a shower which fell at 4:30 served to obliterate any tracks that might have been left. The men went across a field from the house, this fact being made known by the finding of a pocket knife belonging to Mrs. Ragsdale which was taken from the front porch by the men. The officers and coroner and jury were busy all the forenoon trying to discover some clue, but all efforts were fruitless. However, the search is being continued and every effort will be made to bring the offenders to justice. On Monday two strange men were seen in the vicinity, but nothing was seen of them after that time.

Entered From Upper Window.

It is believed that the burglars entered through a window of Mrs. Hill's room from the roof of the porch, the window of the room remaining open at nights. After going through the room they went down the stairs into the dining room and left through a window of the dining room.

Jury Still Empanneled.

Coroner Wood returned to the city yesterday afternoon. He stated that the jury had arrived at the conclusion that Mrs. Hill was murdered, but had not completed its work. Every effort is being made to find the guilty parties and the jury wil reassemble as early as any information other than that given above is brought out.

Caused Great Excitement.

The news of the horrible affair spread throughout the county and was the subject of conversation in Greensboro and High Point and, of course, in Jamestown everyone was talking of the crime and speculating as to who the assailants were. A large number gathered at the Ragsdale home, many going from Greensboro and High Point.

Of a Prominent Family.

Mrs. Hill was a daughter of the late J. S. Ragsdale, one of the most prominent citizens of Jamestown, and was a brother of former County Commissioner W. G. Ragsdale, a prominent cotton manufacturer of Jamestown. Mrs. Hill was the widow of the late Dr. Joel Hill, of Lexington. For some time she had been in a hospital in Baltimore and was enroute to her home, having stopped over to spend several days with her mother and brother. She was 37 years of age and is survived by several children.

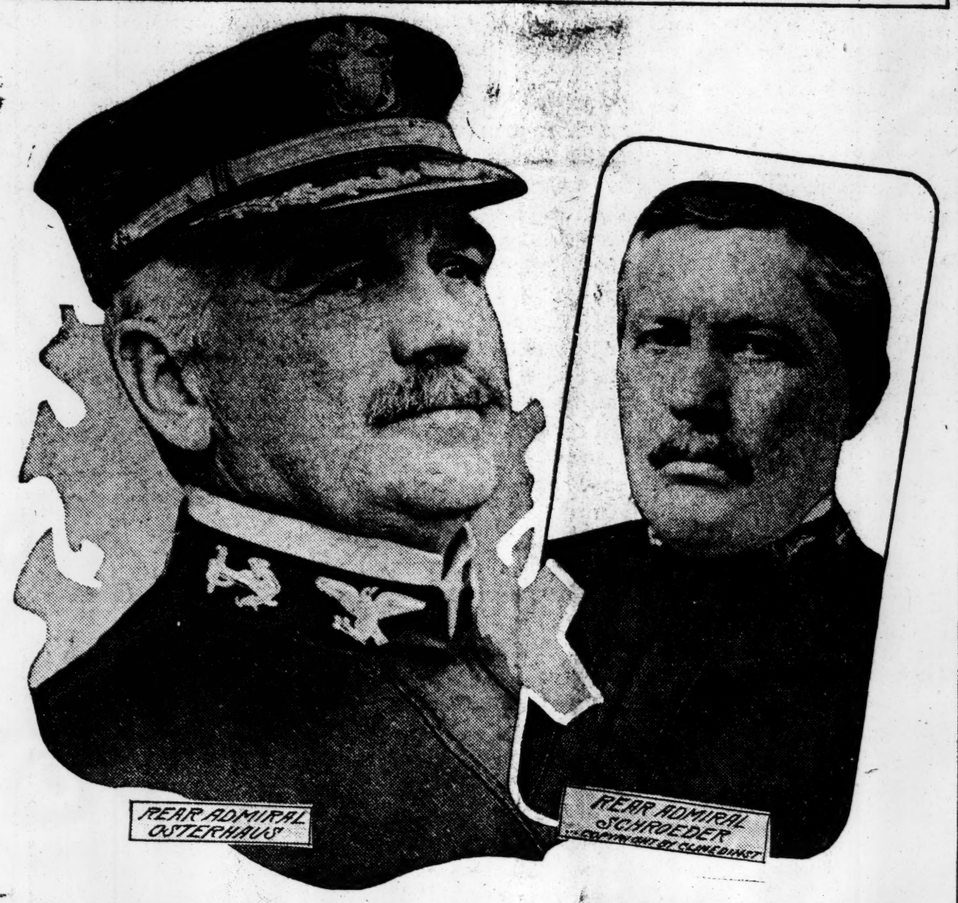
Atlantic Fleet Has New Commander---Schroeder Hauls Down His Flag After 47 Years' Service.



After forty-seven years' service in the navy Rear Admiral Seaton Schroeder relinquished command of the Atlantic fleet to Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus. Schroeder has a splendid record in the navy. He was appointed from South Carolina on Sept. 27, 1864, as a midshipman and was made ensign on April 19, 1869. On July 12, 1870, he was promoted to the rank of master. His next advancement was to a lieutenancy on Oct. 29, 1872. He was made lieutenant commander on Sept. 27, 1898, and held the commission during the Spanish-American war. He was executive officer of the battleship Massachusetts, lying at Dry Tortugas, when the Maine was blown up in Havana harbor and was appointed one of the court of inquiry to investigate the disaster. He took part in the capture and sinking of Admiral Cervera's fleet when the Spanish admiral attempted to escape from the harbor of Santiago, and for his part in this action the administration advanced him three numbers on Aug. 10, 1898. On March 3, 1899, he was promoted to the rank of commander and for several years succeeding 1900 did important service as governor of the island of Guam. Osterhaus was appointed to the navy from Missouri. He was graduated from the Naval academy in 1870. Until his latest promotion he was commander of the second division of the Atlantic fleet. He is sixty years old.

CAUSE OF MISSIONS WILL BE PRESENTED THROUGHOUT COUNTY

Pastors And Laymen in Conference Yesterday Decided to Send Deputations to Every Church in County Shortly to Plead For Support of Foreign Missions.

An important missionary conference was held yesterday in the West Market Street M. E. church annex, which continued from 10:30 to 3 o'clock. Three excellent addresses were delivered to the pastors and Laymen in attendance during the morning session, and in the afternoon, inspired by the enthusiastic and exhorting words of the speakers, the conference accomplished the purpose of the meeting, the adoption of a plan and appointment of a committee whereby the most distant church in all the country might be reached and evangelized to the cause of furthering the laymen's missionary movement.

The Morning Session.

Mr. A. M. Scales, a layman foremost in the cause, presided over this session. In a short but inspiring talk, he opened the business of the conference with a few preliminary remarks, in which the purpose of thus calling together the most prominent workers in the Laymen's movement was clearly stated and the members were urged to adopt and carry through some practical plan that would enlist the hearty co-operation toward missions of every church member in the county.

G. H. Miles spoke on "Our Present World Opportunity." Mr. Miles is also a prominent layman and a most enthusiastic missionary worker. He dealt with his topic in an interesting manner, dividing his talk into several heads and explaining them individually. He showed clearly that the necessities for a great revival in missions are at hand. The tithe from every member of the M. E. church that rightly belongs to the Lord would, he declared, pay all church expenses at home and triple the present gifts of the U. S. and Canada combined. As for men required, the speaker showed that about the middle of the last century the Southern States alone furnished enough men to evangelize two or three worlds.

Rev. T. G. Ogburn, in speaking on the subject, "The Characteristics of the Missionary Church," declared that the trouble in missions lay in the home church. The causes of intemperance and falsehood stand not in their own strength but in the weakness of Christianity. It is much easier today, he declared, to evangelize a whole community than to foreign missionize a single church. The address was divided into seven heads explaining the requisites of a standard missionary church: Weekly offerings of missions. 2. Every member canvass for missions. 3. Systematic missionary education. 4. Program of prayer for missions. 5. A Missionary Sunday School. 6. A missionary committee. 7. Lastly, all of these necessities to missions are dependent upon the pastor.

An excellent discourse on "The Individual Appeal of the Missionary Enterprise" was delivered by Rev. J. C. Turner. Mr. Turner declared that it was a great privilege of Christians to answer an appeal from the soul of the lost world and spread God's word rather than an imposed duty.

The Afternoon Session.

John McEachern, state secretary of the laymen's missionary movement, was in charge of the open discussion held during the afternoon. He called for a plan that would reach all the churches in the county and put into action the principles of the laymen's movement. All the churches must be brought to participate in the conferences at Mt. Airy, 23 to 25 of June, Burlington, Junue 30 to July 2, and at Wilkesboro shortly after.

The members of the conference responded to the call and various plans were discussed. The plan finally agreed upon was that deputations composed a pastor and layman without regard to denomination should be sent to every church and group of churches. On a day to be decided later the pastors of all churches in Greensboro and High Point will co-operate and every pulpit will be vacated on the same day that the pastors may visit the country churches. Laymen will conduct the services in all the city churches on that day. In that way it is proposed to meet the church members of all the county on the same Sunday and probably extend an enthusiastic campaign throughout the week.

TERRIBLE CRIME IN HOKE COUNTY

Will Clark Charged With Criminally Assaulting Young Woman—Deed Was Committed in March But Clark Had Disappeared—Was Arrested in Harnett County ---In Fayetteville Jail.

Special to Telegram.

Faletteville, June 8.—Will Clark, a young white man of Hoke county, is in jail here charged with criminal assault on Miss Gibson of Laurinburg.

Clark was arrested in Harnett county while at work on a farm and for safe keeping was brought here, where are kept all the Hoke prisoners, pending the erection of a jail for that newly created county.

The crime with which Clarke is charged, was committed in March near Dundarroch, Hoke county, where Miss Gibson, a girl 15 years old, arrived late one afternoon. Though she had gone to visit her sister she found no one awaiting her at the station and was taken up by Clarke and his sister who promised to take her to her rural destination. After leaving his sister at his own home the young man drove to the edge of a swamp where the deed was committed. He threatened Miss Gibson's life should she divulge the affair, which she did.

A warrant was sworn out for Clark's arrest but he had disappeared. A young man from Hoke county summoned as a witness to Harnett county court, recently, visited the section above Lillington, where he recognized Clark, working as a hired man on a farm. His arrest followed.

FIRST DRUNK SINCE MAY NINTH WAS TRIED YESTERDAY

Municipal court yesterday morning was only a small affair as the docket was composed of only four cases. In one of these, Jessie Ellison, a white woman, failed to appear in court and forfeited a bond of $25, which she gave when arrested last Monday.

A case against Paul Harris, charging him with assault, was dismissed without action.

John Greene, a negro carriage driver, was taxed with the costs for driving a hack without license.

An excellent record was broken in the session. L. Williamson, a white drunk, fined $7.50 plus the costs for being in that disgusting state known as "drunk, down and disorderly."

However, the inebriates of Greensboro have made an enviable record for not since May 9 has it been necessay to give any of them lodging in the city jail where they might sleep off the effects of the intoxicants imbibed. Nearly a month without a single drunk speaks well indeed for the moral wholesomeness surrounding Greensboro.

SEVERAL PLACES WANT SCHOOL FOR FEEBLE MINDED

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, June 8.—The Board of Trustees for the proposed State School for the Feeble Minded is in session here for the specific purpose of selecting the site for the institution, for which the last Legislature provided a $60,000 bond issuue. The town that gets the institution must furnish the site and provide a considerable money donation toward providing the equipment. The trustees make the selection of site subject to the approval of the Governor and his Council of State.

There is a delegation here from Kinston striving to locate the school there. Then Washington and Greenville are making considerable efforts to get the school. Raleigh and others also may get in the contest.

The Kinston delegation includes Dr. Henry Tull, D. V. Dixon, H. E. Mosley, S. B. Harper, N. J. Rouse, J. H. Cannaday, Lovit Hines.

The board of trustees, which was named by Governor Kitchin, is composed of Dr. J. Y. Joyner, Chairman; W. A. Thompson, Aurora; Mark Majette, Columbia; J. R. Baggett, Littlington; Dr. Kent, Lenoir; Dr. J. B. McBrayer, Asheville; R. E. Austin, Albermarle; Dr. Ira M. Hardy, Washington; F. B. Henderson, of Wilkesboro, was appointed on the board but declined to accept and the vacancy has not been filled.

The $60,000 bonds of the school have already been sold and it is the purpose of the board to get right down to the actual construction of the buildings just as soon as possible.

STIMSON IS LEARNING.

Rapidly Taking on Air of Real Military Man.

Washington, D. C., June 8.—While not a military man Henry L. Stimson, the new Secretary of War, is fast acclimating himself to the atmosphere of the army. Accompanied by Major General Leonard Wood, chief of staff, he rode on horseback today from Fort Myer, Va., to the drill camp of the Engineer Corps, eleven miles distant in the hills of Virginia, and back again. Mr. Stimson and General Wood were guests of honor at dinner at the camp.

TAFT TALKS RECIPROCITY TO COTTON MEN

Special to Telegram.

New York, June 8.—At the dinner of the Interstate Cotton Seed Crushers' Association at Hotel Astor this evening President Taft told the 800 representative cotton men that the opponents of the reciprocity bill are "vigorous, vociferous and active," and that the efforts being made to defeat the bill are not direct.

After pointing out its special advantages to the South, President Taft said: "The effect of the treaty as a whole would be sure to be of the highest usefulness to the country at large as it will rapidly increase the trade which now amounts to $300,000,000, to double that amount."

TWO MILES ON ENGINE PILOT.

Picked Up in Crash, Man Finally Crawls Into Cab.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 8.—While Ray Van Meter, a Berkley county farmer was driving across the Baltimore & Ohio tracks last night, his buggy was hit by a train and the horse killed. The buggy, with Van Meter in it, was picked up on the pilot and carried two miles. Van Meter finally crawled along the footboard into the cab and informed Engineer Keyser of the accident, demanding the train be stopped and the splinters of his buggy be removed from the pilot.

When this had been accomplished Van Meter sarcastically asked whether he would be arrested for stealing a ride. He was but slightly injured.

DIDN'T KNOW IT WAS LOADED.

Boy Tempts Fate on Electrified Third Rail and Lives.

Clayton, N. J., June 8.—Herman Heedleman, delivery boy for a Philadelphia department store, claims he did not know there was danger in the third rail of the West Jersey & Seashore electric road, and deliberately stepped on it in attempting to cross the track near Wenonah station this afternoon. He was thrown several feet in the air and dropped between the two charged rails. One hand struck a rail and was terribly burned.

The boy was taken to the railroad physician, Dr. Clark, of Woodbury, who said that not one in a thousand could live through the lad's experience, but he will recover.

Following the political shaking up in Mexico an earthquake struck that country. Life is just one thing after another in that country.

Madero and the earthquake reached Mexico City on the same day, and the interesting question arises, Will the Mexicans hold Madero responsible for the earthquake?

If Augusta, Ga., a city twice the size of Charlotte, cannot support a team in the South Atlantic League, how much would Charlotte lose on a team in that organization?

In Raleigh an organization has been formed, with "Swat the flies" as a slogan. Greensboro needs an organization of that kind with every citizen of the city an active member of it.

Viewed from the grafter's standpoint there is something radically wrong with the city government of Cleveland, O., where there is a surplus of $9,000,000 in the treasury.

If Colonel Roosevelt gives his hearty support to the candidacy of Taft in 1912 the country will have another opportunity of seeing just how much influence the "Rough Rider" of American politics wields.

Again it has been found that umbrellas are useful in this city and section. The Weather Man has been so stingy with rain for several weeks that umbrellas had fallen into disuse, and some people were wondering if they would ever be useful again except as sunshades.

Cleveland, Ohio, has a surplus of $9,000,000 in the city treasury. This fact affords ample proof that there are no grafters connected with the city givernment in Cleveland, but it is dangerous to advertise to the world that the city has this enormous surplus. The publicity may cause a host of grafters from other places to remove to Cleveland.

The Greenville, S. C., Piedmont says that the fact that Greensboro's team beats Greenville's team playing ball does not indicate that this place is the superior city. That is true. The real superiority of a city could not be measured by its ball team, and Greensboro has so many other points of superiority in comparison with Greenville that no comparison of baseball teams is necessary.

Mobile, Alabama, a city having more than fifty thousand population, voted overwhelmingly for commission government in the face of a hard fight made against the proposition by one of the worst and most powerful political rings ever organized in any Southern city. Mobile is the third largest city in the South to vote for a commission. In this connection it may be mentioned that the commission in Birmingham has already cut the annual expense account of that city more than $100,000, and at the same time is giving the city the best administration of government it has ever had. Commission government is making good in the South.

ROOSEVELT IS NOT PLEDGED.

Roosevelt has issued a vigorous denial of the story published a few days ago to the effect that he had announced his intention of supporting President Taft for the Republican nomination in 1912. The Colonel puts the author of the story in his Ananias division at one fell swoop by saying that the story was a lie "out of the whole cloth." The Colonel gallantly omitted the word lie, but he used the remainder of the sentence and his language needs not to be interpreted to the man of average American intelligence.

Mr. Roosevelt states that he has not agreed to support anyone for President next year and has not discussed the matter with any person.

It is asserted by those who claim to know that Secretary of War Stimson is the man who gave out the interview in which it was stated that Mr. Roosevelt had announced his intention of supporting Taft in 1912. In a dispatch sent out from New York following Colonel Roosevelt's denial of the rumor that he had endorsed Taft for renomination, a man who is introduced as having been close to Mr. Roosevelt since his return from Africa, does some talking which is interesting, to say the least of it. The gentlemen, whose name is withheld, says that Stimson is the author of the story about the good feeling existing between the President and Roosevelt and in regard to the latter's promise to support the former for re-nomination. This gentleman says in reference to the administration and its friends and their attitude toward Mr. Roosevelt, that "They do not appreciate the fact that Colonel Roosevelt has understood absolutely every move made in the East to undermine his influence by the same men who are now seeking his indorsement of the Taft administration, nor do they quite appreciate the fact that he will hesitate a long time before he makes a move that will alienate the West and Middle West, where he is as strong as he was before he went into the last campaign.

"It seems hardly possible that the friends of the administration, who are so anxious to announce publicly that they have won over Roosevelt, should believe he has forgotten some of the incidents of the last New York State campaign and the preliminary fight for the control of the Saratoga convention.

"If ever a man threw himself into a campaign and fought for a losing cause, Roosevelt did, and yet he was aware all the time that friends of the administration, who genuinely wishing for the election of Stimson, were willing to see the candidate for Governor go down to defeat because they believed that such a result would be a death blow to the Roosevelt influence and the Roosevelt popularity.

"I was one of those who saw a great deal of the colonel in the State campaign of last fall. They 'worked' Roosevelt day and night to get votes—and abused him in private. I started to speak to him once about it, but he held up his hand and would not listen. The night before the election he went to Oyster Bay, knowing well that if Stimson had been elected, the very men who had used him until he was worn out were ready to issue a public statement that Stimson had won despite Roosevelt, and that Stimson's election meant the elimination of the colonel.

"It is not without the bounds of reason that Roosevelt and Taft may be the personal friends again that they were when Roosevelt was in the White House. On the other hand, you must remember that the colonel is not the man to forget the way his friends were treated by Taft as soon as Roosevelt was out of the country, nor the stories that were spread by Taft's friends in the desire to disrupt the former friends. Roosevelt has stuck to Lodge and to Root, despite the divergence of opinion on political questions, and he would have stood by Taft, despite their diametrically opposite views on many political matters if it had not been that he thought he had received discourteous treatment from the President. The colonel, of course, is not allowing anybody to speak for him without explicit directions, but it is safe to assume that the interest in Washington over the final roping and throwing of Theodore is a trifle premature.

"As for his not wishing his name to be even mentioned for the presidency in 1912, that is an old story, made unduly prominent at this time for obvious reasons. More than four months ago I saw a letter from the colonel saying that he would not even consider the presentation of his name before the convention. There are friends of his, however, who think otherwise, and they, up to the present time, have not been roped and thrown."

"In the Nantahalas."

"In the Nantahalas" is the name of a book by Mrs. F. L. Townsend, of Lincolnton, N. C., which has just come from the press of the Broadway Publishing Company, New York City. This is an interesting story of 186 pages, with the scene laid in the mountains of Western North Carolina, and details in a frank, straight-forward manner the characteristics and genuine worth of the natives of Carolina's mountain country.

Linda Graham, a bright and winsome girl of the mountains, is the central figure of the story, and the author clothes her with such attractions and lovely qualities that the attention of the reader is held throughout the story. The frankness and splendid quality of the girl bring to her the admiration and love of those who read the book. Two lovers come into her life and add that feature which is always necessary to the complete novel.

The chief purpose of the book is accomplished in clear and forceful manner in which it presents to the world the true character of the dweller in the mountains. To convince the reader that the people of the mountain country are not ignorant, but instead are people of the finest attributes of heart and mind, is the author's intent, and this is strongly presented in a discussion of their lives and loves.

MAY NOT ALLOW THE CITY TO WITHDRAW.

League Directors Seem Inclinned to Want to Keep Charlotte in the Circuit at a Time When Opportunity Presents Itself to Get Into Another League.

The admission of Charlotte into the South Atlantic League has reached now a doubtful period by reason of the fact of the intimation and direct information from some source that the other towns of the Carolina Association will not agree to the withdrawal of the Queen City from the league at this time, even if another situation is found for placing the local franchise. The national commision would not allow Charlotte to withdraw without the unanimous approval of the league directors and it seems that some of those who don't care if Charlotte does pull out, really do care after all to the extent that they will not grant their permission.

The proposition is still in a pending attitude. Officials of the local club, at least some of them, are anxious to take advantage of the opportunity at this time of getting into the South Atlantic, not because the city is now supporting a team that is not a consistent winner, but because the city has been wanting in that company for about three years and never had the chance that is now presented. It has been contended for some time that if Charlotte had a franchise in a Class C company, the attendance here would greatly improve and the people would be much better satisfied with baseball. There is not enough of rivalry in the Carolina Association as it is at present constituted. Charlotte doesn't want out of the circuit because it is the "whole cheese" or the "We-are-Its," nor because it is too large to mix up in Class D organization. Not at all. By reason, however, of its population, it is entitled to a franchise in a higher circuit and the promoters of the game, never have profited in a financial way, from baseball in this league, have been trying for three years to get a berth in the other organization.

Now if the league directors will not grant their consent for Charlotte to advantage itself of the present opportunity, it will be all over and Charlotte will continue its place in the Carolina Association. It was hoped by the local directors that permission might be secured to place the local franchise either in Wilmington, Rock Hill or some other favorable situation, but this does not appear to meet with general approval and the withdrawal of a club under the constitution of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs, demand that the vote be unanimous.

All of this talk about Charlotte wanting out of this lague because it has a losing team and the youthful and affectacious ridicule being thrown at the city for this reason in connection with its prospects of taking a jump higher is the veriest tommy-rot and worse than that. It is plainly evident that by no due process of luck, it is possible for the Charlotte team within the course of the next month to be at the top of the column and outstripping its competitors by a long lead. Why, therefore, should the local directors want to quit now in the face of a possibility that is really a probability. It is true and the belief is generally held here that the attendance in Charlotte so long as the present organization is intact will never be up to the size of that in the further event that the South Atlantic franchise was held here. But with the increase in the expenses of maintaining a higher-salaried club and taking into consideration the exceedingly long mileage, it stands to reason that the directors may come out of the season better under present conditions than if the higher-class franchise was taken.

It is believed to be possible for Charlotte to acquire the Augusta franchise in the South Atlantic, all things out of the way. President Joyner of that organization and President P. M. Cave of the association have been in touch with each other, and the former being apparently anxious to include Charlotte in his circuit and President Cave has gone only so far as to assure Mr. Joyner that if the league directors would allow the city to withdraw, he would be willing to take over the Augusta franchise. It is now being held as the property of the South Atlantic league and is on the market for $3,000.—Charlotte Observer.

Advertising Talks

H. G. B.

The merchant who has the idea that he can do business and continue to grow without advertising in spite of the fact that his competitors are advertising is laboring under a "commercial delusion," and the sooner he wakes up the better it will be for him. Of course a man with a little money can fit up a store and do some business and perhaps make a small profit on his investment without advertising, but it is like hitching up one horse to a double wagon and putting a two horse load on it, the horse can probably move the load if you give him time enough, but the fact remains nevertheless that he needs help. Advertising is just about a 50 per cent. factor in upbuilding a business, and that is putting it conservatively, in a good many instances it has proven to be almost the whole thing.

Mr. Merchant, if you are still one of the unbelievers, just let the advertising man talk to you and help you to map out an advertising campaign. If after a reasonable trial you are not convinced beyond a doubt that it will pay you to do more you can cease "experimenting" without having had very much outlay.

In Greensboro, The Telegram will demonstrate to you beyond any doubt, if given a fair trial, that newspaper advertising pays.

The Commercial Travelers.

The drummers held their annual convention in Greensboro last week. They are a fine body of men and there is not a skin-flint among them. That kind of a man cannot sell goods on the road. We do not know a class more generous or attractive. It is a pleasure to say that the moral tone of the commercial pilgrims has been steadily rising for several years past. The profanity and coarseness so common among travelling men years ago would not be tolerated now. As a class the drummers are clean and honorable gentlemen.—Charity and Children.

Water Failed to Put Out Fire.

A Granville county farmer who came to town Tuesday told a Sun reporter a story that would make the farmer a fit subject for the Ananias club, were not the story vouched for by other reliable and truth-loving citizens of the same good county.

On Thursday night of last week the barn of Mr. C. L. Floyd, of Fishing Creek township, was struck by lightning and set on fire. The neighbors rushed to the assistance of Mr. Floyd, as neighbors in this good section always do and volunteered their services to help extinguish the flames. A bucket brigade was formed and a steady stream of water was brought from a near-by spring. But for one time, according to the account of the farmer, it failed to be the deadly enemy to the ordinary flames that it usually is. Bucketful after bucketful of water was poured upon the fire that was rapidly devouring the shingles of the roof, but it only burned the brighter. Each dash of water seemed to give the fire more fuel.

In the presence of this seeming miracle of the fire-devil, one of the citizens, with more presence of mind than the others, bethought himself of the old story, told over and over again by black mammies, to the effect that fire caused by lightning could not be extinguished by water, and that the proper remedy for such a fire is butter milk. Fortunately a spring house was near-by filled with the delicious product of the dairy. No buttermilk was available, but sweet milk was substituted. With the first onslaught the fire-devil began to retreat and soon the crackling flames had been anihilated, and the day was saved. All of which goes to show that listening to tales of black mammies is not so unprofitable from the standpoint of gross materiolism and utilitarianism.—Durham Sun.

THE SQUIRREL'S CUNNING.

Storing It's Winter Supply—Why It is a Game Bird Guard.

Although the common red squirrel is is one of the liveliest and most attactive of our wild creatures a knowledge of its habits is more casual than intimate.

The past winter gave forest lovers an opportunity for studying squirrels to an extent seldom possible, as the mildness of the weather made neither for nor deep hibernation. I was surprised at the number and variety of places where the little animal had stored its winter hoards. The smallness of these, too was noteworthy as they seldom contained more than a handful of foodstuff.

The larders were in hollow trees, old birds' nests and deserted squirrels' nests, but most often in the ground a little below the surface, and although many of the hoards were at the foot of trees the favorite place was in a field bordering a wood and about 20 or 30 yards from the edge. The latter is prbably the safest larder of all, as marauding rats and mice do not venture so far outside the wood in winter.

After watching the squirrel going from one hoard to another I have little doubt that its ability to find these is not a memory of instinct, but of smell. It is the same highly developed sense, too, that makes the squirrel an accomplished truffle hunter (for truffles are a great squirrel dainty), and I think that it must have been their smelling abilities that brought squirrels to a peach house in which they did a lot of damage.

Squirrels cunning defeated the most cleverly laid traps and other attempts at capture, and to save the fruit the unwelcome visitors had ultimately to be shot. The squirrel is one of the best game-bird guards and its winter stores have fed many a famished pheasant.

Beyond aan occasional "cluck!" the squirrel does not pay much attention to a mere man, but immediately it espies a fox or stoat on the prowl it chatters loudly in the greatest excitement and game birds never fail to profit by their sentinel's warnings, apparently knowing that the squirrel is no idle alarmist.

Pheasants scratch up and devour the squirrel's winter stores when other food is scarce and as "pug" always wastes ten times the quantity of food it consumes and scatters nuts, acorns, wild fruits and hedge berries which the game birds would not otherwise get and which they thoroughly enjoy, it thus benefits them all the year round.

One of the prettiest sights is that of young squirrels taking their first lessons in climbing and jumping. Like most wild animals the squirrel can swim well when the occasion demands, but it does not love damp and when passing through wet grass its tail is carried high and not foxwise, as it usually is when the squirrel is in motion.—The Scotsman.

BRITTAIN-HACKNEY.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in the office of the register of deeds here yesterday, when Miss Mabel Hackney of Greensboro became the bride of Mr. W. W. Brittain, of Guilford College. The marriage occurred shortly ofter 10 o'clock, the ceremony being performed by 'Squire P. T. Lehman.

The couple came to the city on the train from Greensboro yesterday morning. According to the bride and groom it was not a runaway, but it was stated that they merely desired a quiet wedding and decided to give their friends a little surprise by slipping off to the Twin City.

Miss Hackney is the daughter of Mr. T. D. Hackney, of Greensboro, and has many friends in that town, who will learn of her marriage with interest. Mr. Hackney is business man of Guilford College, where he has resided for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Britain returned yesterday afternoon to Guilford College, where they will make their home.—Winston-Salem Journal.

New President of Elon.

There will be general regret among the friends of Elon College at the retirement of E. E. Moffitt, under whose administration the college has gone forward steadily and prosperously. He went to Elon from the editorship of the Christian Sun and the regret at his retirement is increased because it is made necessary by his ill health. He is better than a year ago, but not strong enough for the strain that the position imposes.

The new president, Dr. W. A. Harper, has made good in his position as head of the Latin department and in the important position of dean of the college faculty, which he has held for several years. In scholarship and in excellent judgment Dr. Harper is well qualified for the position.

Elon College has won a place of large usefulness in the educational life of North Carolina. There was not wanting much wisdom in the determination of the western millionaire who determined to give ten millions to small colleges. The greatest college is the one in which students comes in closest contact with a big teacher. The big men in the large colleges do not personally come in near enough contact with the students to shape their lives as is possible in the college where the attendance is not so large.—News and Observer.

HAD THEIR DOUBLES.

Instances Among Celebrities—Dickens and Tennyson.

Many celebrities have had their doubles. Grant Duff records that he found "Professor Schrader so ludicrously like Huxley that I went up and shook hands with him at Lady Alford's." There was a strong physical resemblance between Tennyson and Leslie Stephen, in spite of a disparity in years, and between Jules Ferry and Whiteley, the Universal Provider.

Edmund Yates was so like the late Shah of Persia that his photographs were sold in Brussels as the Shah's when Nasr-ed-Din visited that city. Sir Laurence Alma-Tadema used to have a double in George Du Maurier. So closely did they resemble each other that a lady at dinner one night addressed Du Maurier as Sir Alma, and assured him that he was "really not a bit like that Mr. Du Maurier, as people tried to make out."

It is open to the fictitionist who deals in doubles to point to many instances in real life, says the London Chronicle. King George and the Czar of Russia could exchange parts without anybody noticing the physical difference. The Duke of Norfolk and the late George Manville Penn were almost exact duplicates in outward appearance. And two such artists in different ways as Anthony Hope and Edward German were in their earlier years again and again mistaken for each other.

They were hardly "doubles," but there was a remarkable resemblance between Tennyson and Dickens. Comyns Carr in his "Eminent Victorians" tells how he once showed the poet a pencil drawing which Millias had made of Dickens after death. Mr. Carr himself had been struck by the resemblance the portrait bore to Tennyson, and was curious to see if the poet would notice it. Tennyson gazed at it intently for a minute and then exclaimed: "Why, this is a most extraordinary drawing. It is exactly like myself."

Made a Difference.

Uncle Henry Altman had a two-year-old colt of which he was very proud. Many were the disputes he had with his neighbors over the weight of the animal, and he considered that it was jealousy that caused many of them who were regarded as experts to put the weight at a figure a few hundred pounds below the weight on which he had set his heart.

One day he sent him to town with the boys to have him weighed. A few days later a neighbor came along and said to him:

"Well, Uncle Henry, did the colt weigh as much as you expected?"

"He might have been a trifle shy," said the old man, "but I can explain that. It was all on acount of a mistake by the boys. I told them to have him weighed on a scale which they weigh coal on to sell, and they had him weighed on the scales of a fellow who buys hay."

Goes With Richmond Paper.

George Matton, who graduated this week at Trinity College with honors will enter journalism which has always been his desire, having made a beginning on the Enterprise when a boy. He really makes a beginning, however, with the Richmond Times-Dispatch, on which he has accepted a position as reporter and will enter upon his duties this week. We wish him success believing that he will attain it.—High Point Enterprise.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

HAIR NATURALLY ABUNDANT.

When It Is Free of Dandruff, It Grows Luxuriantly.

Hair preparations and dandruff cures, as a rule, are sticky or irritating affairs that do no earthly good. Hair, when not diseased, grows naturally, luxuriantly. Dandruff is the cause of nine-tenths of all hair trouble, and dandruff is caused by a germ. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ; and, so far, the only hair preparation that will positively destroy the germ is Newbro's Herpicide—absolutely harmless, free from grease, sediment, dye matter or dangerous drugs. It allays itching instantly; makes hair glossy and soft as silk. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Hezekiah's Great Passover. 2 Chron. xxx.

Golden Text—Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart. 1 Sam. xvi:7.

(1.) Verses 1-5—Who were the nations of Israel and Judah composed of, and who were at this time their kings?

(2.) What was the passover and what was its origin?

(3.) What sort of a man religiously was Hezekiah?

(4.) What motive did Hezekiah have in proclaiming this passover and what did he expect to accomplish by it?

(5.) Why in that day, was it essential that this passover feast should be kept at Jerusalem?

(6.) Why is it that no particular place is now essential for God's people to worship acceptably?

(7.) If a nation neglects public worship, what may we reasonably expect will happen?

(8.) Verses 6-9—When the nation is in a decadent condition religiously, what should the leading Christians do?

(9.) What is the best medium today through which the churches should call the nation, as such, back to the worship of God?

(10.) What are the chief points contained in this circular letter of Hezekiah to the kingdom of Israel?

(11.) What effect does the worship of God by the nation have upon its prosperity?

(12.) Verses 10-12—Why was it that some "laughed them to scorn," and others accepted the invitation sent them by the king's messengers?

(13.) In religious matters a large section of the nation act contrary to their judgment; why is it?

(14.) Verses 13-14—Why can there be no acceptable worship of God, if the people hold on to what they know to be wrong?

(15.) Verses 15-20—Does God ever accept the worship of a people if those who conduct it are doing things that they are "ashamed" of? Why?

(16.) Why was ceremonial cleansing of so much importance in those days, and of no importance in these days?

(17.) What is the only essential thing which makes worship well pleasing to God?

(18.) Is it ever so in these days as in those, that the prayer of one man is efficacious for a multitude?

(19.) Verses 21-22 — What would be the probable effect if the churches were now to have annual gatherings at central points, to last for seven or more days, after the type of the old time camp meeting?

(20.) Why should it be thought out of order in these days to have banquets, or dinners, or teas in connection with intense spiritual meetings?

(21.) This religious feast appears to have been a time of great outward demonstration and inward joy; why should we not plan for such meetings in all our churches? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

Lesson for Sunday, June 18th, 1911. The Downfall of Samaria. 2 Kings xvii:1-18.

ARE THESE TWO GIRLS ONE?

The hardest problem legal authorities in Berlin have had to solve in years has resulted from the brief imprisonment of the "Sisters Blazek," who are joined like the famous Siamese twins. A warrant for alleged breach of contract was issued for one of the sisters, who were appearing at a Berlin music hall. The court officer wasted no time in the embarrassing situation that confronted him, but took both girls to jail. A few hours later the music hall manager made the necessary deposit and secured the girls' liberty. Now the sister against whom there was no warrant is suing for illegal imprisonment. Legal experts agree that unless the court decides that the two girls are in reality only one somebody will have to pay dearly. One sister is married and the mother of a baby two years old.

TELL YOUR WANTS IN THE TELEGRAM.

Getting Ready for the Start.

We know of many who are all in trim for the start in the Bible contest, which commences next week. There are, however, many from whom we have not yet heard, and it is time they got into line. The Telegram is a prime necessity, and unless you order at once you may be left without a paper from which to cut the coupon certifying that the necessary reading has been done. There is only one coupon in a paper, so that a copy is essential for every competitor. If you have not already ordered the paper, you had better do so, and if you have, what better blessing could you confer upon some friend than by inducing him or her to take up this easy Bible study course and sending The Telegram during the term it covers? Think about this and "do it now." We take this opportunity of thanking the large number who have spoken words of appreciation for giving the people of Guilford county the opportunity of reading these "Suggestive Questions," and for the course of Bible study as previously outlined. A revival of Bible study promoted by the secular Press is causing all good people to rejoice. Use the attached coupon for yourself or a friend.

VEILS THAT ARE IN FAVOR

Novelties Introduced During the Winter Have by No Means Lost Their Attraction.

There are some novel veils that have found favor in the realm of fashion, which, though they have been worn to some extent during the past winter, are still holding their popularity and will continue to do so during the early summer months.

They are made of Shetland wool, woven in wide-mesh patterns, and they neither crush nor tear easily. They are also shown in heavy silk and silkaline and are said to be a great protection, both to hat and the complexion in inclement weather.

They are particularly well liked for automobile use and there is no end to their durability. Black or white are the most acceptable colors, although they can be had in a variety of colors to match the hat and gown.

March and April winds cannot be overlooked. They are disastrous to one's appearance, if not properly coped with, and, if one wishes to reach one's destination in a proper frame of mind as well as in a neat condition as to hair and skin, one must be veiled.

A New Silk.

Among the newest and elegant silken fabrics which the season has called into prominence is satin feutre, a very lustrous weave, heavy of weave, beautiful of finish, but soft and graceful despite its heaviness.

It is quite wide, as are the finer silks, and is to be had in plain colors in the new and fashionable tones, as well as striped effects—the ground one shade and a tiny hair line of contrasting color crossing it. The stripes are single and not too far apart to be unduly conspicuous.

For elegant afternoon or more simple street dresses satin feutre is very effective and will make very striking toilettes.

Baby's Gloves.

You can make gloves for your baby out of thick, fine canton flannel. First lay the baby's hand, palm downward, on a piece of paper, and trace around it to get the size; cut out the usual mitten-shape pattern in paper.

Then fold the material face to face, place the pattern on it, and cut out. Stitch each glove firmly rather near the edge, and hem the gauntlet end, which is to be worn outside the coat sleeve. Turn and sew the ribbon to tie around the little wrists.

These gloves may be lined with wash silk or some fine woolen fabric.

Benzine for the Puffs.

The elaborate false coiffure of the day has caused much anxiety as to its healthfulness, and learned opinions have been forthcoming as to its dangers. Hideous things are told of rats and their origin, yet for truth's sake all this hysteria about false hair must be taken with more than a grain of salt. But the woman whose doubts do not prevent her from craving curls and clusters may reassure herself by giving them a benzine bath before using, thus preparing them to rest side by side with the scanty locks.

BAN JOHNSON AFTER GAMBLERS

American League Head Starts Crusade on Baseball Betting.

EVIL THREATENS THE PASTIME.

Club Officials Ought to See That Practice Is Smothered at Once to Insure Safety of Game—Plenty of Betting In Detroit and Chicago.

By TOMMY CLARK.

At last steps have been taken to combat the gambling menace to baseball, and heroic efforts to stamp out betting within and outside the parks of the American league will be made at once by the organization in a body.

Ban Johnson recently sent out a bulletin to every American league magnate calling attention to the prevalence of betting and asking each club owner to enforce to the letter the section in the constitution prohibiting betting. Not alone this, but he has informed the police departments of the different cities of gambling on the games.

President Johnson figures that in order to discourage the gamblers it may be necessary to place under arrest every person caught making bets at a ball park.

Now that the American league executive has come out strongly against gambling at baseball games at ball parks and on the outside it is up to President Tom Lynch of the National league to issue an edict against gambling, and the national commission ought to get together and put it up to the club owners to stamp out gambling or take the consequences.

Ban Johnson's crusade grows out of a report that much gambling is being indulged in at Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia and Boston. It has been said that there is a lot of betting in New York, but the betting done in New York is nothing compared to what is done at Pittsburg.

In New York your neighbor may say, "I'll bet you $2 that the New Yorks get off in front and stay there," or if there is a man near you who is a rooter for the visiting team you will get sore because he is rooting against you and bet him $5 that he is rooting for a "dead one," or vice versa.

Now, this is not the betting evil that Ban Johnson refers to. He, talking straight from the shoulder—and when he gives vent to these utterances he knows what he is talking about—is hitting at a bookmaking element. He has learned that "booking" is being done on the games in Chicago and in Detroit. He also knows that Pittsburg has an element that "books" on every game. What he fears is that if measures are not taken at once to stamp out this evil the bookmakers will invade the baseball parks, and if this comes to pass it won't be long before the game will be in bad repute.

Last spring the gamblers attempted to make a book on the two pennant races. Odds were published on the different teams, but the government soon put them out of business. Acting on a request from Ban Johnson recently, the Detroit police began a campaign against gambling on ball games. On the first day they found a dozen or more places where boards giving odds were shown and books made on various games.

Many years ago betting came near killing baseball, for it became known that some of the ball players were in league with the gamblers, throwing the games or trying to win them, as the betting demanded. The managers, ferreting out the guilty ones, blacklisted them and then framed rules to safeguard the game against a repetition of the scandal. How well they succeeded is best told by the great popularity of the game today, for baseball has grown and developed until it is indeed the great national pastime, equaled by no other game that was ever invented.

Ban Johnson has sounded the keynote, and it is up to heads of the various leagues and club owners to join the movement. If this is not done, then baseball will lose its popularity. Honest competition always will receive the patronage of the better class of citizens. That is why at a baseball game you always find our law abiding citizens.

Ideal Baseball Manager Is Found.

At last the ideal baseball manager has been discovered. He is Dan O'Neill, manager and owner of the Connecticut league team representing New Britain, who has shown that he has a realizing sense of what is due to the patrons of baseball who pay their quarters to see his team in action. A game between New Britain and Springfield, won by the former 11 to 10, was so poorly played that at its conclusion Manager O'Neill had the announcement made from the diamond that spectators on the way out of the grounds would be given rain checks good for the next home game.

Horse Racing In Florida.

There will be no more racing in Florida. Not only has adverse legislation killed the game, but fire destroyed the Jacksonville stands recently. The loss is $35,000.

Champion Gotch Gets Big Money.

Gotch gets $21,000 and half of the picture money for wrestling Hackenschmidt.

STEEPLEJACK'S CLOSE CALL

A steeplejack, William Smith, of Cincinnati, had a narrow escape from death lately while putting a coat of paint on the top of a tall smokestack. Smith lost his hold and before he could regain it plunged 40 feet to the roof of the building, struck the slate with a resounding thud and bounded into the air, alighting on his feet like an acrobat. A number of workmen who were on the roof at the time rushed to Smith's assistance and were astounded to see him walk several feet to where his tobacco pipe lay and calmly pick it up. He was but slightly bruised.

Girls Wear Overalls and Straw Hats While Learning to Farm

Photos copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

NINE girls who want to be farmers are learning all about agriculture on the school farm near Hempstead, N. Y., established by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont. She has set aside 200 acres of her Brookholt estate as the property of the school which she intends to endow and make permanent. When her intentions were announced she had scores of applications from city girls who wanted to become farmers. All of the applicants were subjected to examination, and none was accepted unless her physical condition indicated that she could do the hard work that would be required. Only nine girls were accepted because at present there are accommodations for only that number, but ultimately when the farm is on a settled basis the number will be increased. The girls must serve an apprenticeship of two months, and if they have then shown their fitness for the work they will be paid $16 a month for the rest of their stay. It is expected that the average girl will be able to complete the course in one year. The girls do the actual work of the farm, and each night they set down in their diaries exactly what they have done during the day, the kind of soil handled, seed planted, etc. In these diaries a complete record of the crops will be kept, and the books will thereby become valuable in future years. The illustrations show some of the girls engaged in work on the farm.

THRUSH HELD UP CAR.

Strangely-Chosen Nest Protected by Railroaders Till Little Ones Depart.

Burlington, N. J., June 8.—When a little brown thrush yesterday pushed six fledglings from a nest she had brazenly built upon the truck of an idle freight car more than a month ago, the car was released once more for the use of shippers. For five weeks the car remained on the siding because kind-hearted William Southwick, yardmaster at the East Burlington freight yards, would not permit the mother bird and her strangely chosen nest to be disturbed.

Other "empties" came and went, but car No. 58967 was jealously guarded by Southwick and the yard crew and once there was almost an open rupture when a careless brakeman allowed drilling car to bump that on whose trucks sat the tiny nest. Even after the eggs hatched, the car remained on the siding undisturbed. Today the nest was empty; the yard engine coupled to the car and drew it away for a load of freight.

ORDINANCE.

The following ordinance was passed by the Board at its meeting on June 7th, 1911:

Be it ordained by the Board of Commissioners of the City of Greensboro:

Section 1—That in addition to the special license taxes levied by ordinance of the Board at its meeting on May 19th, 1911, any person, firm or corporation, owning any business or following any trade, avocation or profesion hereinafter enumerated, shall pay a license tax thereon acording to the following schedule:

Loan Offices, where money is loaned and secured by mortgage on personal property, $50.00.

Palmists, or persons engaged in the business of fortune telling or predicting the future by any means, $200.00.

Teamsters, one horse vehicle, $3.00; each additional vehicle of any kind; $1.50; one team of two horses or more, $5.00; each additional team, $2.50.

The above shall not be held to include drays.

Transfer Companies, not engaged in hauling baggage for each wagon or van, $5.00.

Dairies, same license tax and charges as in force last year.

Slaughter houses, same license tax and charges as in force last year.

Sec. 2—That upon every business, trade, avocation or profession, not enumerated in this or the former ordinance of the Board, fixing the special license tax for the current year, there shall be paid a license tax of $10.00.

Sec. 3—That every person, firm or corporation who shall carry on any business or practice any trade, avocation or profession whereon a license tax has been fixed for the current year, without having paid said tax, shall be liable to a penalty of $50.00 for each offense, and each day said business shall be carried on, or said trade or profesion is practiced, shall constitute a separate and distinct offense.

Sec. 4—That the ordinance passed at the meeting of the Board held on May 19th, 1911, and known as the special license tax ordinace, to amended by adding thereto the following to be known as Sec. 11 of said ordinance, viz: "That any person, firm or corporation who shall violate any of the provisions of Sections 3, 6, 8 and 9 of the foregoing ordinance shall, for each offense, be liable to a penalty of $50.00 to be collected as provided by law."

By order of the Board.

DAILY MARKET REPORTS

WEATHER FORECAST.

North Carolina and South Carolina unsettled ocasional showers.

Georgia, showers except fair in Northwest.

Florida, local showers.

Alabama and Mississippi, generally fair.

Western cotton belt generally fair.

Slight Increase in Georgia.

Atlanta, June 8.—The Commisioner of Agriculture of Georgia issues the following report on cotton: There is an increase in acreage of only two per cent, 5,069,400 acres. Condition of growing crop on June 1, 87.5 of normal and comparing with 89 per cent last year. Supply of labor 94 2-3 per cent of last year and wages five per cent higher.

COTTON LETTER TO J. E. LATHAM.

New Orleans, La., June 8—There is no question but that the present easiness in old crop positions is for a specific purpose. Whether to shake out trailers before the final bout in July, to meet the present spot dullness due to the numerous holiday periods in Liverpool, or to affect new crops in order to buy them to better advantage is not known, but the fact remains that old crops are being let down in New York and this depresses new crops in the face of bullish crop influences.

On acount of the holidays in Europe comparisons of mill takings will be bearish this week. The map shows fair weather over the entire belt except in Georgia and the Carolinas where it is cloudy. No rain of consequence outside of the Atlantics and there mostly in the coast districts. Indications are for continued fair and hot weather except in the Atlantics where it is cloudy and unsettled. No general rain in sight for Central or Western states today. For the past four days the Atlantics have had showers in different localities which have unquestionably greatly improved prospects there. The only drawback is that the crop is late. These rains should have occurred three weeks ago in order for the crop to have attained its normal growth. The market was firm on new crops up to the close of Liverpool but weakness then appeared in the summer positions in New York and pulled down the whole list. There was good substantial buying on the depression but if old crops weaken further new crops are likely to ease off also.

For the Hostess

A Unique Flower Luncheon.

The hostess asked ten guests to come to a luncheon, each wearing a flower (either real or artificial) to represent a country. The flowers were all typically springlike, being daffodils, narcissus and hyacinths. The place cards were original rhymes in which the name of the flower was not mentioned, but to be guessed. A few specimens follow:

Your sweet face says: "I think of you,"
Your colors are of every hue. (Pansy.)

Blue as the loving sky,
Thine emblem constancy.
(Forget-me-not.)

"I love you! I love you!" your rich color imparts
Oh, how fondly we nestle you close to our hearts. (Red rose.)

Though dangerous pleasures you imply,
Your wax-like petals doth please the eye. (Tuberose.)

The countries represented are: United States, goldenrod; England, rose; Ireland, shamrock; France, fleur de lis; Japan, chrysanthemum; Canada, maple leaf; Holland tulip; Scotland, thistle; Germany, cornflower; Switzerland, edelweis; etc.

One of the many flower guessing contests was used as a pastime, the prizes being a copy of "Elizabeth and Her German Garden," and set of flower-decorated place cards. The center of the table represented a formal miniature garden, the tiny flowers and trees being found in the toy and favor department of a large city store. These novelties are within the reach of most of our readers as prices are gladly quoted and orders filled by mail.

Butterfly Dinner.

Have butterfly candle shades, butterfly place cards and, if possible, a lovely overhead decoration with a number of delicately made paper butterflies fluttering from the ceiling at the end of fine silk strings. Serve the following menu:

Consomme With Peas.
Oyster Croquettes. Cucumbers.
Braised Sweet Breads. Asparagus Tips.
Veal Fillet With Brain Fritters.
Pineapple and Celery Salad.
Pistachio and Vanilla Ice Cream in Meringue Shells.
Black Coffee.

Lovely nut holders may be made (or ordered from a firm making a specialty of novelties) by having small butterflies poised on the rims of the cups which hold the nuts. This is a beautiful decorative scheme especially fitting at this season.

An Announcement Party.

There was nothing unusual about the invitations to this party, which was an affair for about thirty young people who were in the same social set. When the dancing commenced some one observed that the young hostess seemed especially taken with a young man who had recently come to town. Presently some one noticed that the wedding march was being played by the harp which furnished the music. This was followed by these melodies: "Mendelssohn's Wedding March," the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin," "Hearts and Flowers," "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden," "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," "Beloved It Is Morn," "Oh Promise Me."

The songs were rendered by a vocalist behind a screen. When the program was finished the host and hostess asked all to come to the dining room, where a large loving cup was passed and all asked to drink to the health of the happy pair who stood side by side while the toasts were being offered. Then all went back for a merry, informal dance amid showers of congratulations.

A Baseball Luncheon.

A mother who had two sons in a local baseball nine gave this original luncheon, inviting the "nine" as her special guests. The invitations went out on diamond-shaped bits of pink papers and were received with great enthusiasm. The hour was one o'clock, after which there was a practice game for the approaching "big" game which was to decide a championship; so all were told to come in their baseball suits.

The center of the table was laid out for a game with miniature figures on a "diamond" made from green paper; a wire mask held flowers and the place souvenirs all represented names of famous baseball nines. There were the "Cubs," little stuffed "Red Socks," the "Pirates," represented by skull and cross-bones, the "Tigers," "Giants" and "Indians." There were also miniature bats and balls and the "nine's" mascot, a dog, was not forgoten. A hearty meal of beefsteak, spaghetti with tomato sauce, scalloped potatoes, olives, brown and white bread, salted nuts, fruit salad with hot cheese sandwiches, individual apple pies and generous cups of cocoa delighted the youthful guests. Molasses candy and peppermint sticks were the sweets. The boys went off with three cheers and a tiger for the popular mother, and she declared she never had more appreciative guests.

MADAME MERRI.

FANCIES OF FASHION.

One of the most exquisite of the new nets has a border of ragged blue that trails off indefinitely into pale green.

Coat suits of pique and linen will be popular garments for the little miss this spring. Some very smart models are fashioned of colored linen.

Many of the new foulards have fine white stripes on dark blue, gray, green, or lavender, brown and over all a conventional satin figure, the same color as the ground.

No Reasonable Offer Will Be Refused

The Outwitting of Prunella

By Nellie Cravey Gilmore

I consumed many perplexing hours over a circumspect, yet sufficiently emphatic reply to Prunella's recent surprising communication. Here is what she wrote:

"Dear Dick—Our engagement is at an end. Something awful has happened—something that makes it impossible for me ever to marry you.

"Do not, I pray you, attempt to see me; I could not endure it, not now.

"Under separate cover I am mailing to you our betrothal ring, together with the brooch, watch and bracelet you sent me on my last three birthdays. Please do likewise in regard to different trifles I have given you. I do not care for them intrinsically, but under the circumstances it is best that this should be done.

"I am starting for Colorado Thursday, where I shall make my home with the Cahills as governess and companion to their children.

'Do not try to intercept me. This is final, and though it breaks my heart, there is no other way but to sign myself, Farewell forever,

"Prunella."

The letter had left me bewildered, dumfounded, dazed. It was a long time before I could rake my faculties together, even to think. Had Prunella, in some miraculous fashion peculiar to fiancees, dragged forth some affair out of the past? Had my latest escapade with a chorus girl been erroneously reported on the evening Daggar? Had some one of my numerous rivals confided to her that a distant uncle of mine had died of consumption? After having cudgeled my ingenuity exhaustively, I produced the following:

"My Dear Girl—Yours to hand and contents noted. I am shocked, startled beyond expression. Our relations have been too deep, too tender, too genuine to be thus lightly severed. It is my blessed privilege to request an explanation; and failing in that, to demand one.

"If you will be good enough to indicate the hour, I shall take pleasure in calling at your home. Don't refuse, for depend upon it, I shall find a way of seeing you face to face and hearing the worst. As ever,

"Dick."

This dispatched, I gave my attention to the long-neglected pile of briefs

Was Pacing Up and Down.

stacked up on my desk. As I sat working late into the twilight the telephone bell at my elbow tinkled imperatively. I took up the receiver.

"Hello!' said I, "what do you want?"

There was an infinitesimal pause; then a feminine voice asked:

"May I speak to Mr. Allison please?"

"This is he," returned I in my most courteous tone.

"Oh!"

"Well," I observed, "have you recovered?"

"Recovered!" she repeated in profound astonishment. "I don't understand you."

"That letter," I reminded, "wasn't it the result of an hallucination of some sort?"

"Certainly not!" She flung back the words with such force that the telephone wires jangled.

I was quaking inwardly, but determined to bluff it out.

"Oh, come, now, Prunella--don't be foolish. Why don't you speak out. Is there's anything—"

"There is," she cut in sharply, "and here is the truth: I was coming up town on a Broadway car the other day. Your father occupied the seat in front of me; he was talking to another man. He said: 'Too bad about Underwood's sinking every cent in that wire deal, wasn't it? Leave his family practically penniless. Dick's engaged to one of the girls I believe, but of course it'll all have to be off now.'"

I bit my lips till the blood showed through in purple prints.

"Prunella!" My voice sounded hoarse and angry over the wire.

"Yes?" hers came back in some trepidation.

"Is that all?"

"Isn't it enough?"

"No," I thundered, "it is not! Where are you?"

"I'm down town."

"Where?" I reiterated sternly.

"At the Grand Central station. My train leaves in—"

I banged the receiver on the hook, grabbed my hat and flew down stairs. Elevators were too slow for my present frame of mind.

My runabout stood at the curbing. I sprang in and shot frantically through the scattering procession of vehicles, arriving at my destination in eight minutes.

I went at once to the ladies' waiting room. Prunella was not there. Full of alarm I hurried out into the corridor. Less than ten feet away a girl, slim and graceful in a dark traveling suit, was pacing up and down.

"Prunella!"

She sat down weakly on a bench nearest her, her face scarlet.

"Dick," she said reproachfully, "you shouldn't have done this; you shouldn't, indeed!"

I sat down beside her and forced her to look into my eyes.

"Tell me now," I said, "why you are trying to run away from me in this fashion."

"I am not running away at all. I told you I was—"

"But you said Thursday. Today is only—"

"I was afraid—I knew you would try to see me, Dick. And I was determined that—that—"

I looked at her with savage reproach.

"You certainly couldn't have loved me very much," I interrupted, staring ahead, "if you were willing to give me up like this."

"You have it reversed. I love you too much to stand in the way of your interests."

I looked at her curiously a second; then I burst into downright laughter.

"You are a quixotic little idiot, Prunella."

"I'm nothing of the sort," she contradicted, with pink cheeks. "I'm just simply proud, that's all."

"Pride be—dashed. Come out of this stuffy place, anyhow."

"But—but you don't understand, Dick. I must wait here till my train is announced. I've already accepted this position and bought my ticket—"

"I'll take charge of that," I interposed, holding out my hand. When she gave it to me, I quite deliberately lifted it up and tore it in two.

"Good gracious!" exclaimed Prunella. "I paid—"

"My runabout is waiting outside. We'll take a spin out to the park. There's a fine new church just finished out that way. The minister lives next door; he is an old chum of mine—nice fellow. If you need a fresh pair of gloves or a hook and eye or—or anything—" I stole a twinkling glance at her, "oh, I mean to loan you the money if you do!"

Quite unresistingly, she found herself walking by my side, and out into the street; and the next thing, we were skimming dizzily over the gleaming asphalt.

"Immediately after the ceremony," I told her, as we slid to a standstill in front of the rectory, "I shall drive to my lawyers' and make over every red cent of the blamed money to somebody else. I'll not be responsible a day longer for such a menacing element in my life."

Half an hour later, as Mr. and Mrs. Richard Allison, we were whirling down Fifth avenue.

Prunella glanced at me a trifle uneasily.

"Dick," she questioned, in a little tremulous voice, "who is it you are going to settle—"

"Why, on you, of course, my dear. Shall we go to the Waldorf for dinner?"

Married in China.

Raleigh, June 8.—Here and throughout North Carolina there is the keenest interest in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Cheshire, daughter of Rt. Rev. James Blount Cheshire, Bishop of the Diacese of North Carolina, and Rev. Albert S. Cooper, missionery to China, this marriage having been celebrated in the American Church Mission at Ichang, China, Wednesday, Rev. Daniel T. Huntington officiating.

Miss Cheshire and her sister, Miss Annie, left here for China two years ago to take up work as missionaries. The bridegroom is a native of Deleware and has been in China as a missionary for the past seven years. He was in America some months ago and paid Raleigh a visit, making quite a pleasing impression here where the splendid young woman he has just married is especially beloved and admired by all who know her. Mr. and Mrs. Cooper will continue to reside at Ichang, where they are in charge of important mission work.

Steady progress is being made in the review of the documentary evidence and depositions bearing on the $1,200,000 damage suit of Ware-Kramer Tobacco Company vs. American Tobacco Company for the destruction of the plaintiff's business through trust methods of destroying competition. The contentions by counsel before Judge Connor are over the advisibility of various questions put in taking depositions. The purpose is to settle these contentions in chambers before the jury trial of this famous suit begins here June 13.

Here on business today was J. W. Butler, of Hoffman, Moore county, who says the dewberry crop in his section is proving especially successful this season with the northern markets holding well up to $5 per crate, this being 20 cents per quart. He says that a few years ago the land in his section could be bought for 50 cents per acre after the timber was cut from it, it being regarded as practically worthless. However it has been learned now that a bale of cotton can be easily grown per acre and that for dewberries and all kinds of truck it is especially adapted. Price of land have advanced until the prices range from $15 to $75 per acre.

The latter was for the Arey Oil & Fertilizer Company, Salisbury, increasing the capital from $50,000 to $100,000. The charters were: The Standard Realty Company, Greensboro, capital $100,000 by C. C. McLean, R. C. Hood and others; The Long-Winston Company, Oxford, capital $25,000 for dealing in stock and farm impliments; The Pritchard-Bright Company, Durham, capital $35,000 by J. J. Pritchard, J. W. Bright and others for merchantile business.

The State officers constituting the state text-book commission met this afternoon in the executive office of Governor Kitchin and opened the bids for text-book adoption, examining their form and correctness of certified checks that, under the law, each bidder offering books for adoption, must file with the commission. There were found to be 30 bidders, a number offering a number of books each. And there were three others whose bids were not up to requirements, although the defects may be remedied in time for them to get into the contest in due form. This afternoon at 3 o'clock the text-book commission and the sub commission, the personnel of which was announced yesterday, met in joint session and arranged the preliminaries for the hearing of book men on their respective bids, which begins tomorrow and will continue for several days.

PURPOSE OF PURCHASE OF MENDENHALL BUILDING MATTER OF SPECULATION

Speculation Has Not Revealed The Purpose of County Commissioners in Buying This Property—Officials Are Non-Communicative.

The deal by which the county becomes the owner of the Mendenhall building, just north of the court house, the facts of which became known Wednesday has caused a good deal of speculation as to the purpose of the commissioners in securing the property.

Already there are various rumors afloat as to the real purpose of the deal, but no official confirmation of the rumors is obtainable. The officials simply state in answer to questions that the property was purchased for future use.

One of the rumors that have spread since the news of the deal became noised about was that the county was simply getting the property in shape so it could dispose of the lot should an opportunity offer and then erect a modern and up-to-date court house on a more suitable spot. It will be remembered that about three years ago the county had an opportunity to sell the court house property for $100,000 and had secured an option on the Keeley Institute property, but the deal fell through because of the fact that as matters then stood certain alleyways on the north and west sides of the court house could not be closed up, at least without a great deal of legal manipulation, and without these strips the property was of no value to the prospective purchasers.

It was rumored at that time that the Southern Power Company wanted the site on which the court house is located for a terminal station and if it secured the property a ten story office building would be located thereon, the first floor to be used as a terminal station by the company when its interurban lines were extended to Greensboro. The deal of the county in acquiring the Mendenhall property enables the county to close one of the alleyways in question and this fact has caused the old rumors of the ten story building to be revived. While the Southern Power Company has purchased a twelve acre site on Greene street in the rear of the city hall building is is rumored that that company would still be glad to get control of the court house site if the former objections could be overcome. So it is believed by some that in purchasing the property the county officials were looking ahead to the time when the entire property could be sold to the Southern Power Company for an interurban station, simply wanting to get things in readiness for that time. It is believed that but little trouble would be experienced in securing control of the remaining alleyway.

The same rumor has it that if such a deal is made, it is not expected that an opportunity will offer for several years, the county will be given an option on the property of C. G. Wright on North Elm street for a court house site. The present arrangements at the court house are most unsatisfactory as the noise at times makes it almost impossible to hold court.

A fact which gives strength to the rumors that the county has hopes of selling the property is that a temporary building is being erected for the use of the commissioners and the county board of education in the rear of the building just purchased. The deal for the newly acquired property was on before the new building was contracted for and it is reasonable to suppose that had the county officials any intention of enlarging the present courthouse so as to make it adequate to supply the demands made upon it they would have waited until the deal was closed and then gone to work and erected a large addition to the north and rear, putting the court room on the west side and out of the noise that now fills it while court is in session. Another fact is that the vaults in the offices of the clerk and register of deeds, especially in the latter, are almost full of records and in a few years to say the least, larger vaults will have to be provided. So taking these facts into consideration it would seem that the rumor was not without some foundation, and that the prospects for a larger court house and one more in keeping with the progress and development of the county are not so slim as they appeared when the contract for the "two by four" annex was contracted for, to be used by the commissioners and board of education.

In Hat Trimming

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

WITH a remarkable vogue in black and white in ribbons and straw shapes the liking for flowers to provide color, follows "as night the day." But flowers are everywhere used, whether the hat is quiet or gay. A group of three models shown here portray what may truthfully be termed the three leading ideal shapes and their popular and tasteful trimming.

In Fig. 1 a French sailor with a decided upward roll to the brim and a low dome crown, is pictured. The shape is in white chip, but any other white braid will give good effects. The bow across the back is of white satin ribbon having a border of black velvet ribbon stitched on one edge. The loops are wired. There are four of them making a wide double Alsatian bow, extending across the back of the hat, mounted against the crown.

Small, full blown garden roses are massed over the crown, concealing it, and a few glossy leaves peep out about the base, outlining the shape and making a good finish.

One of the hats on the helmet order is shown in Fig. 2, made of rough braid in tones of bronze and purple. A bronze velvet faces the brim and is laid in a flat plaited bow at the left. Here a spray of wild flowers in shaded colorings in which dark red, purple and green tints appear. This hat may be designed in almost any color. In amethyst shades, with deep purple facing, and cerise flowers, it is very handsome. It is a good model in all black.

Shapes which flare off the face have captivated many fancies and are apt to lead all others for summer wear. Fig. 3 shows a smooth straw in leghorn color, in which the brim droops about the head but lifts abruptly at the front with a sharp turn upward. Two bouquets of roses and moss joined by a band of black velvet ribbon, which extends about the crown, make this a hat which will harmonize with almost any costume.

This shape is to be had in many colors as well as black and white. It is pretty in black hemp or tagal, and in good black chip will prove serviceable. The color of the roses is a matter of taste, which the wearer may settle to suit herself.

ARSON TRUST REVEALED BY CLOTHIER WHO KILLS SELF

Chicagoan Admits He Hired Firebugs to Burn His Store, Then Goes Home and Commits Suicide.

Chicago, June 8.—An "Arson Trust," ready and willing to enter into contracts to destroy any business for a part of the insurance, has been operating in Chicago, New York, Cincinnati and other cities. Leopold Dreyfus, a wholesale clothier, who shot and killed himself this afternoon, contracted with the Trust to destroy his place of business. The fire was kindled on Saturday, and caused $15,000 damage. It looked suspicious, and Leopold Dreyfus, his brother Lazard and Max Cohen, bookkeeper, were arrested. Leopold Dreyfus withstood the "third degree" until 4 o'clock this morning. Then he broke down, and in a detailed confession, which he signed, made these revelations:

The fire was the work of a Trust, which attends to all details of destroying a business house by fire for a part of the insurance.

Dreyfus paid $300 in advance of the "job," and promised to pay $700 more as soon as he could collect the insurance. The Trust at first demanded $5,000.

Dreyfus was relieved of all responsibility, the incendiaries guaranteeing the success of the "job."

Six or eight men, all said to be well-to-do, compose the ring of firebugs, and have made big profits out of their operations. The police say they have their names, and the order has gone out to round them up.

Dreyfus was taken to his home, and left there under guard. He shot and killed himself at 6 o'clock, while the guard was outside his door. The Dreyfus store had been saturated with gasoline. This was his third fire in three years. Dreyfus was insured for $28,000. His assets are not more than $20,000, and his debts $32,000.

An actor was bragging about his summer home by the seaside.

"What did it cost you?" asked a friend.

"Around $50,000," said the actor modestly.

"Say, Bill!"

"Well?"

"I wouldn't be so reckless as that if I were you, even with stage money."

No Size to It.

"He is a big man—in his own opinion."

"Don't see how that could be."

"Why?"

"Never thought he had the capacity to carry an opinion of any dimension."

LAJOIE'S ONLY FAULT.

So Perfect In Tagging Runners That Catchers Throw Poorly.

According to Syd Smith, the cherub faced backstop with the Naps, Larry Lajoie has a fault. He is too good at taking throws and tagging base runners.

"When Larry is to take a throw all the catcher thinks about is to get the ball down there some place," says Smith. "As a consequence the catcher makes a lot of bad throws.

"If Larry was not such a wonder at tagging runners a catcher would take pains in making his throws and make sure of getting the ball right.

"I am up against the same proposition I had at St. Louis, where Bobby Wallace took throws from the catcher. Bobby and Larry are the greatest two I ever saw when it comes to tagging runners.

"The man who takes the throws at second can make or break a catcher. No matter how fast a catcher gets the ball down to second or how true he makes the throw, if the man at the other end does not know how to tag the runner the catcher looks bad.

"While I was with the Naps last fall I had Ty Cobb stopped three different times when he tried to steal, but Peckinbaugh was taking the throws, and he missed Cobb each time. Larry would have tagged Ty easily."

DOYLE LOOKS LIKE VET.

Chicago Cub's Playing at Third Base Clinches Position For Him.

Jimmy Doyle as the baseball season slowly creeps along is steadily carving himself into the position of permanent third baseman on the Chicago Cub team. With every game his work improves, and he is succeeding exceedingly well in working with Tinker. Daily he is lessening Heine Zimmerman's prospects of regaining the job at the far corner when Johnny Evers returns.

His work in the field and at the plate is taking on the aspect of a veteran's as he is rapidly gaining in knowledge and experience.

For the present Manager Chance has no idea of taking him off the infield when Evers returns.

The only possibility of Doyle being removed is when he begins to have a slump. There seems to be little chance of that taking place, as Doyle is determined to reach the height of his ambition—that is, to become the permanent player of a major league club.

Doyle Getting Dose of Own Medicine.

Umpire Jack Doyle's experience this season must remind him of the good old days of the Baltimore Orioles. In those days Jack could start more trouble on a ball field than any player then in action, and numerous indeed are the instances where he became entangled with the umpire. But Jack is an umpire now, and he evidently is getting a dose of the medicine he used to delight in handing out.

DESIGNED FOR HOME WEAR

Mulberry-Colored Cashmere Would Make Up Well for This Pretty House Dress.

Here is a smart little dress made up in mulberry-colored cashmere. The under skirt is of lining, to which is attached a deep kilting; the tunic is wrapped over at left side and stitched, and is trimmed then with passementerie.

The material of bodice is tucked each side, and is then crossed over a vest of tucked cream ninon; the oversleeves are cut in with the bodice and are trimmed like edge of fronts to match tunic. The tight fitting undersleeves are of tucked ninon.

Material required: Six yards 46 inches wide, six yards lining, one and one-half yard ninon 40 inches wide, three yards trimming.

Linen for Needle Work.

Heavy gray linen is much used for the background for embroideries which are to be employed as house decorations. Bedrooms and living rooms for country houses are furnished in gray in many instances, and the linen is used for bed hangings, cushion covers, tablecloths and window hangings. Ambitious needlewomen are embroidering these articles in quite elaborate designs in several colors. For one bedroom a set of hangings for the bed and window is being made of the gray linen embroidered with designs of wood fairies and fuchsias in tons of violet, green, pale yellow and fuchsias red.

WORSHIP THE GODDESS KALI

Robert Dulwich, who has traveled extensively in the lesser known regions of the Himalaya, gives an interesting account of a native sect known as the Thrays who have some curious practices. The sect are worshipers of the goddess Kali. They believe either in self-destruction or in the sacrifice of one of their fingers to appease the deity. Thus it comes about that when the eldest member of a family is married the unhappy mother is expected to cut off the first two joints of the last two fingers of her hand. Princesses and other smart people in this remarkable sect are allowed to offer a substitute of finger joints, modeled in gold.

Useful Costume Adapted to Small Maiden From Eight to Ten Years of Age.

Here is a useful little every day dress, suitable to be made up in cashmere, serge or any fine woolen.

The long waisted bodice is gathered to a band that is covered with wide galloon or embroidery; the kilted skirt is fixed to the other edge of this band.

The square yoke is of tucked silk, outlined by galloon to match the band; the neck is finished by a frill of narrow lace. Small bishop sleeves gathered to a wrist band, trimmed with galloon.

Materials required: Three yards 46 inches wide, about 3 yards galloon, three-eighths yard tucked silk, two yards sateen.

Buttons in Favor.

Skirts, blouses and whole suits show a plentiful decoration of buttons, although not with the old-time profusion. Five or six heavy handsome buttons are used and these for the most part at the bottom of the front and back panels or wherever one edge of a band or flounce overlaps another.

When used as a trimming on waists they are generally quite small and one can use almost any number of them. Sometimes these are covered with the dress material and sometimes with the silk or satin that trims it.

COUNTY LOSES BY CITY'S ACTION IN WORKING CONVICTS

It is Now Seen That Establishment of County Court Would Have Been Beneficial to County—City Gains by Working Convicts on Streets.

The action of the city administration in instructing Commissioner Foushee to work the prisoners convicted in Municipal Court on the streets of the city instead of sending them to the county roads to work out their terms as formerly will cause a big slump in road improvement throughout the county.

This fact was discussed by the board of commissioners at the meeting this week and the fact was the cause of lamentation on the part of some of the commissioners. However, as was state by one member, the commissioners can blame no one but themselves as they had the opportunity to forestall such proceedings when they voted on the proposition to establish the county court and turned it down.

The county officials, or at least some of them, it is said, have at last realized their mistake in turning down the proposition to establish a county court. In dollars and cents the court would have cleared all expenses and turned into the general fund several thousand dollars yearly; and the loss of the convicts formerly sent to the roads from the Municipal Court will mean a great deal to the county as at least half of the convict force has been secured from Greensboro alone. This fact being taken into consideration the county will be the loser to no small extent. Now if road improvement throughout the county is to be continued as extensively as formerly the county will have to employ labor for this work.

The fact that the innovation of the city in working the convicts on the streets will be a losing proposition to the county makes it apparent that the move is a good one for the city. Of course, at first there will be but a few hands and the work may be done at a loss, but as the force is added to the value of the hands in improving the streets will become greater. By this method a large number of the streets that have never been touched by the city can be improved and the citizens will receive some returns for the investment in the city government in the shape of taxes.

So far, Commissioner Foushee has but three men at work, these being in charge of Capt. McIver, who has had years of experience in handling convicts on the roads. A portable jail similar to the ones in use on the roads is being constructed and the convicts will be camped in places adjacent to the streets upon which they are working.

Wins Fight For Life.

It was a long and bloody battle for life that was waged by James B. Mershon, of Newark, N. J., of which he writes: "I had lost much blood from lung hemorrhages, and was very weak and run-down. For eight months I was unable to work. Death seemed close on my heels, when I began, three weeks ago, to use Dr. King's New Discovery. But it has helped me greatly. It is doing all that you claim." For weak, sore lungs, obstinate coughs, stubborn colds, hoarseness, la grippe, asthma, hay-fever or any throat or lung trouble its supreme. 50c. and $1. Trial bottle free. Some Paradox.

The aeroplane is here to stay.
Wouldst know the reason why?
Because—well, written records say
The aeroplane can fly.
The truth is, if it couldn't go,
That it would have to, don't you know.

F. S. Rexford, 615 New York Life Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., says: "I had a severe attack of cold which settled in my back and kidneys and I was in great pain from my trouble. No Dream.

"Suddenly," said the man with a three days' growth of beard and an out of date necktie, "I found myself falling 400,000 feet into the depths of a bottomless pit."

"Dreaming, I suppose."

"No; just getting from under a corner in wheat."

A Charming Woman

is one who is lovely in face, form, mind and temper. But its hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always proves a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood; give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health. Economical Wife.

"Henry, dear, the children are needing shoes."

"Needing shoes again. Do you think I am made of money? Where are the ones I bought for them just a few days ago? I suppose you have given them to some beggars under the impression that their father's amusemnt was to buy new ones."

"No, my dear, I have not given them away. I have put them through the meat chopper and will serve them tomorrow as hash. Be home early for dinner, dear."

FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

New stoves, the ovens of which have a panel of glass inset so that the housekeeper may observe the baking process without opening the door, are likely to become very popular.

The French housewife cooks peas and carrots together, and very delicious the combination is too. Shell half a peck of peas; scrape and cut up fine a small bunch of spring carrots; melt a large tablespoonful of butter, to which add the peas and carrots, and a little salt and pepper. Cover and let steam. Add a little hot water at a time until the vegetables are soft; then mix a tablespoonful of flour with a little cold water for thickening, and pour over, allowing it to boil for a minute or two.

Eggplant which is so popular at this season, is made very delicious by stuffing with nuts. Use one cupful of nut meats of any sort, chopped; one tablespoonful of butter, one tablespoonful of bread crumbs, one eggplant, two eggs and salt to taste.

Boil the eggplant until it is tender; scoop out the centre; chop up contents and mix with the rest of the ingredients. Fill the shell with this mixture and bake for an hour.

When tomatoes and corn become cheap enough to use like common or garden vegetables try cooking them according to this recipe, which is popular in a German family:

Alternate layers of the corn and tomatoes, season each with butter, pepper, salt and a little sugar. Make a top layer of bread crumbs dotted with butter and bake in an oven for 20 minutes.

A man who cannot eat creamed crabs, because of some digestive idiosynerasy, declares that crabs a la Creole are the most delicious things in the world. To make take a pint of crab meat. Brown a small onion in a tablespoonful of fresh butter, stir in a tablespoonful of flour and add a cup of hot water and one can of tomatoes. Season with salt and cayenne pepper and then add a saltspoonful of sugar and one tablespoonful of tomato catsup. Boil the mixture until it thickens. Add the crab meat and bits of green pepper, and let cook for a few minutes. Serve on toast.

Crabs en coquille are equally good. use two cupfuls of crab meat, cut into neat dice and set on ice until needed. One heaping teaspoonful of flour and an even tablespoonful of butter, four tablespoonfus of cream, salt, cayenne, 10 drops of tabasco sauce, a little boiling water pinch of soda in the cream.

Make a roux of the flour and butter. Season the crab meat and stir into the roux, thinning with just enough boiling water to make the mixture manageable. When smoking hot take from the fire, beat in the hot cream and fill the crab shells with the paste, rounding to suit the shape of the shell. Sift fine crumbs, salted and peppered, over each, put bits of butter on top, and brown in the oven.

If a tablespoonful of lemon juice is added to the paste intended for deviled crabs, these will be much improved.

Serve slices of crisp bacon with the broiled tomatoes and put on toast for a nice breakfast dish.

Stuff green peppers with tomatoes and rice, and add a bit of bacon to give an appetizing flavor.

Add mushrooms to the creamed crabs and the result will be surprisingly good.

CONGRESS DIGS INTO HISTORY

Half a Dozen Investigating Committees at Work.

LOOKING FOR EXTRAVAGANCE.

Trouble Expected In Getting Lawmakers to Act After They Have Collected Information, as Tendency to Spend Money Has Not Been Confined to the Various Departments.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, June 8.—(Special) With a dozen committees of the house making investigations of the government, it may well be said that a congressional history of past administrations is now in course of making. Much of the information adduced has been made public, but it comes with some new stage setting which makes it interesting.

It will be found that our government has been generous in the matter of attorney fees and in paying salaries for commissions for many other purposes, but nearly all this was known. Congress created many of the commissions. The object of these various expenditures committees is to bring forth information which will enable congress to reduce the expenses of the government. But the great trouble will be to induce congress to act after it has the information. The tendency toward extravagance has not been alone in the departments, but also in congress. The attempt to curtail expenses in congress was loudly approved, but the men who lost jobs and the congressmen who lost opportunities of getting patronage by the reform are dissatisfied.

Proved Too Much.

"Gentlemen prove too much," was an expression of Colonel Pete Hepburn. So it was with an earnest witness against reciprocity from South Dakota. He had shown that it was the worst kind of outrage to take the duty off wheat and had been sailing along very well until he mentioned that there was no excuse for a duty on lumber.

Then Senator Heyburn grilled him. The witness was put in the attitude of favoring a duty on wheat, but against a duty on lumber, although both come in free under the reciprocity bill. He told how he had been "stung" on lumber purchases and thought the way to get even was by having lumber admitted free of duty.

Fears Race Contamination.

Congressman Burleson of Texas has no fear whatever of negro domination in the south, but asserts that the negro peril is now in the north. From his observations while traveling in northern states, he says, there is a danger to the white race by the amalgamation due to the lack of race feeling and the fact that thousands of negroes are going into the northern states.

"It will not come in our time," he said, "but there is danger for future generations. There are too many mixed marriages in states where the laws and customs are lax."

Becomes a National Figure.

There are men in the Democratic party who believe that the controversy which Chairman Underwood has had with Bryan will make him a national figure and a leader in the next convention of that wing of the party which opposes the views of Bryan on tariff as well as many other questions. Underwood put a duty on wool as a compromise.

"We'll have an agreement," he said, "even if I have to put wool on the free list. I would put it on the free list, but I don't think we can afford to sacrifice the revenue."

That is the way he is managing the ways and means committee. That is why he framed the wool schedule in a manner so unsatisfactory to Bryan. Of course those who just now are so enthusiastic in their praise of Underwood are men who wanted to retain a duty on wool.

Negro Influence Apparent.

Efforts to defeat the reduction of representation of states which disfranchise negroes is fought more bitterly by negro politicians in the north than by any other class. Now it appears that behind the motive to add the Sutherland amendment to the resolution for the election of senators by direct vote is the negro element in northern politics.

Many Republicans who would be willing to take the amendment in any form have been persuaded by the murmurings of negro politicians that it is best to insist upon the Sutherland amendment which will retain control of elections in the federal government.

Suggested Titles.

Mention of Larz Anderson, a rich resident of Washington, for an embassy recalls an opinion once expressed by him that there ought to be a system of titles and orders of nobility in this country with which to reward men who performed valuable political services and could not get offices.

Of course it would mean an amendment to the constitution, but perhaps Anderson did not know that nor realize how hard it is to amend the fundamental law in these days. At that time there was little prospect that Anderson would be considered for a foreign mission.

MRS. TOM JOHNSON SUES FOR SECURITIES

New York, June 8.—Mystery surrounds a suit brought by Mrs. Margaret J. Johnson, widow of Tom L. Johnson, former Mayor of Cleveland, against the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company for $250,000.

Mrs. Johnson alleges that the company has refused to permit her to gain access to a safe deposit box, in which she has cash and securities worth more than $190,000.

The company admits this fact, but says that it is necessary in order "to to responsible persons who also claim ownership of the contents of the box and have notified the company not to deliver its contents to Mrs. Johnson."

William Giblin, president of the Mercantile, refused today to give the names of the persons who claim ownership of the Johnson securities, and Mrs. Johnson's lawyers refused to discuss the matter.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

PATRIOTS AGAIN AT TOP OF THE PERCENTAGE COLUMN

Greensboro's Victory And Winston's Defeat Puts Doyle's Bunch Back at Old Stand—Greenville And Charlotte Tied For Third.

Doyle's Patriots won the first of a series of three games here with Jim Kelly's Electricians by a score of 10 to 1 yesterday and went back to top place in the percentage column. While the game went through nine innings, it was really "all over but the shouting" at the end of the first frame. In the first inning a combination of two hits, two bases on balls and four errors netted the locals 7 runs, which settled the game. In the second Kelly sent Coombs to the mound to relieve Wolf, but it was too late to save the game. It was really not much Wolf's fault that the Patriots piled up runs, for the Anderson infield had one opportunity to retire the first three men up, but as a matter of fact retired none of them. The team went up in the air, the pitcher was discouraged and as a result the Patriots had everything their way.

Tony Walters was on the knoll for the locals and was effective at all times. But for an error behind him in the fifth inning the visitors would not have scored. The games brought the Patriots back to the top of the percentage column.

It is something unusual to see nine men come to the bat, get to first and score six runs before a man is put out, yet that is exactly what happened at Cone park yesterday in the first inning with the Patriots at the bat. Rickard hit to short and Kelly fumbled, Rickard being safe at first. Doyle bunted to first and was safe on Fogarty's error. Fuller bunted to McCarthy and was safe on a fumble. Wolf gave Clapp a base on balls and forced in Rickard. Doak landed on the sphere for two bags, scoring Doyle and Fuller. Corwin singled and Clapp and Doak scored, Morrisey hit to left field, and Yount muffed the fly. Stuart was safe on Wolf's error, filling the bases. Wolf then gave Tony a free pass to first and forced in Corwin. Rickard hit to short stop, forcing Stuart at third, Morissey scoring. Doyle flew out to Kelly. Fuller fanned. Side out two hits; 7 runs.

Coombs took the mound in the second. Clapp landed on the ball for a two-bagger and scored on Doak's single. In the eighth inning Walters walked, Rickard sacrificed, and Walters went to third when Doyle grounded out to McCarthy. Fullerr singled and Walters scored. The visitors made their only run in the fifth when Brannons led off with a two-base hit and scored when Doyle missed Corbett's grounder.

Carroll hurt a finger in the practice and could not play. Corwin took his old place at short and "Deacon" Morrisey played in right field. The "Deacon" had only one chance and it was a hard. His two base hit, however, was a feature. Corwin batted at his old rate. Doak's hitting was timely and effective, and Doyle came in for two singles.

The Anderson team has four new men since their first visit here this season. The same teams will play here today and tomorrow at 4:30.

CHARLOTTE AND ANDERSON TRYING TO SELL FRANCHISE

Special to Telegram.

Wilmington, June 8.—Charlotte and Anderson both want to sell their franchise in the Carolina League to Wilmington. Owing to the shaky condition of the League at this time, the propositions are not regarded with favor by local fans.

HORNETS TOOK GAME FROM THE SPINNERS

Greenville, S. C., June 8.—Greenville lost her first game of this series to the Charlotte team by inability to hit Bauswine. The game was as pretty as could be wished, with the exception of the first inning when the local's run was let in by an error. Griffin allowed the first man up to reach first in nearly every inning and only the good work of Catcher Rite in catching the Hornets at second kept the visitor's score down.

"Fan Food" From the Winston-Salem Journal..

The trouble with the Hornets has been that they followed the lead of the dopists and triturated their baseball.

Joe Jackson is climbing after Ty Cobb, the former Carolina leaguer being at .408 now. Ty is hitting just seven points better.

Is there anything in names? The Chronicle dopist wants to draft the captain of Donkeys for use on the Pshawlot team.

A losing team is better than no team, and we are going to help the rest of the bunch to observe the truth first hand.

This won in the ninth that used to sound like a fairy tale has gotten so that it is the expected thing for the home team to do around the circuit.

The Sally league wants Pshawlot, or the Observer says she do. All right, fit and proper. Now will someone please tell us what in the dickens the Sally league would do with Pshawlot if she got her.

Doyle sure has a nifty outfit and they are working like clocks. Looks like the battle would be between the Tarheels, minus Charlotte.—Greenville Piedmont. I say, don't you know, that isn't a half bad guess.

Two games helped the Pshawlot sheets slightly more than it looked possible.. All the time we wanted to prescribe paregoric, but knew that our advice would fall on unhearing ears. Folks with that sort of complaint are most susceptible to the barrel treatment.

Folks who are worrying over the fact that Cashion brought $2,50 from Washington are doomed to disappointment if they think the big 'un wont make good. He's got everything except good control and that can be developed. We'll be powerfully surprised if he does not stick in the majors.

TWINS LOSE FIRST GAME TO MUSICIANS

Spartanburg, S. C., June 8.—Stewart's wildness in the third inning lost the game for the visitors today. The locals got only 1 hit, which came in the beginning of the third. This followed by an error, three bases on balls and a sacrifice fly gave the Red Sox three runs, two of them forced across. An error and two singles gave the visitors a run. The Twins hit frequently but were unable to bunch the hits and local fielding prevented runs.
